THE COURT: The clerk will call both cases.

               THE CLERK: EP-12-CR-2106 and EP-13-CR-370, Marco
 3
     Antonio Delgado.
              MS. KANOF: Good morning, Your Honor. Debra Kanof and 4
 5
     Anna Arreola for the United States.
 6
               THE COURT: I don't need to have -- I'm sorry.
 7
               The Defendant doesn't have to get up. I just want to hear from the attorneys.
8
 9
              MR. HANSHEW: Okay.
10
               THE COURT: Announcements.
              MR. HANSHEW: Good morning, Your Honor. Erik Hanshew
11 12
      and Maureen Franco on behalf of Marco Delgado in the 2013 case.
13
              MR. PEREZ: Robert Perez on behalf of Marco Delgado.
               THE COURT: Counsel, this case is set for next week,
14
15
      for sentencing. You have both -- you've been provided with the 16
      Addendum, both of you?
17
              MS. KANOF: Yes, the Government has, Your Honor.
18
              THE COURT: Mr. Perez?
19
              MR. PEREZ: Yes, Your Honor.
20
              THE COURT: Anybody file any objections, Mr. Luevano?
21
              PROBATION OFFICER: Good morning, Your Honor. Luis 22
     Luevano on behalf of the United States Probation Office and no, 23
      I did not receive any objections.
24
               THE COURT: I presume there's not going to be any 25 objections then and it's kind of late.
```

1
              MS. KANOF: There will not be any from the Government.
              MR. PEREZ: Your Honor, the disclosure didn't really come -- we weren't able to open the disclosure until 4 this week and I've also been in trial this week. And in any event, I'd be filing a motion to continue the sentencing if I'm going to be the lawyer on the sentencing.
 2
 3
 6
 7
               THE COURT: Well, you're the -- you're the assigned 8
      attorney right now. You're going to be the attorney.
9
              MR. PEREZ: And the reason I'm -- 10
               THE COURT: And I'm not going to continue it.
              MR. PEREZ: Well, Your Honor, there are -- my 11 12 understanding, the Government has -- and has made an offer, but 1.3
      it's to resolve both cases globally. I don't know anything about the other case. I know nothing about it. And they are 14
15
     privy to everything in that first case and in the best position 16
      to negotiate, and I've spoken with Mr. Delgado concerning that 17 and he thinks -- 18
               THE COURT: Whatever happens on the second case is not 19
      going to affect the sentencing on this -- this one case.
20
               MR. PEREZ: My understanding though is that there is 21
      an offer by the Government to negotiate both.
22
              THE COURT: Well --
23
              MR. PEREZ: And I'm not in a position -- 24
               THE COURT:
                          That's up to you-all. I have nothing to 25 do with that. I'm telling you right now, this case is going to be sentenced on -- next Thursday, and there will be no continuances, and if you have any objections, you better get them in right away.

         MR. PEREZ: Okay, Your Honor, but I --
         THE COURT: From what I can see from the guideline application, there's not going to be any substantial change from the -- from the original sentence, quite frankly,
Mr. Perez.
         MR. PEREZ: Well, Your Honor, it seems like Your Honor has made up its mind with respect to the sentence already then.
                    Well, you haven't filed any objections.
         THE COURT:
         MR. PEREZ: Your Honor --
         THE COURT:
                     I'm presuming there's going to be no objections.
         MR. PEREZ: And sentencing is a totally different matter from reading a cold appellate record. I have a cold appellate record that just talks about a case. It doesn't -- I didn't get to have meetings with the client about his sentencing, about his family, about different things where they requested a psychiatric evaluation of this gentleman.
         Sentencing is not just having an appellate record and then coming in and being able to do an adequate job in sentencing. If I were to be the lawyer to do the sentencing and to do a fair and adequate job for this gentleman, I would need months to prepare for it.

THE COURT: Well, you're not going to get it. You got until Monday to file any objections if you have any.

Mr. Luevano, the Government doesn't have any objections --

1.3

PROBATION OFFICER: No, Your Honor.

THE COURT: -- on the first case, Ms. Kanof?

MS. KANOF: Your Honor, we do not. And I would like to add, Your Honor, that I think the case has been set for sentencing for quite some time now. I think the case was set for sentencing on the date of the mandate. And I also -- I had an opportunity to listen to the appellate arguments and it was very clear that Mr. Perez was extremely knowledgeable about the facts of the case, had read the record, and knew what had occurred, and I don't know since the Defendant was found competent, what that would have to do with determining a sentence.

The appellate court only remanded regarding the Court making some findings of fact to one of the adjustments and the -- whether or not counsel could open the ECF that had the Second Addendum, Ms. Arreola sent it to Mr. Perez last week.

The offer that was made by the Government was very thorough. It was a chart that laid out the guidelines for both cases and what would happen both -- what would happen if the Defendant was convicted in the second case, and comparing basically what would happen if loss was calculated in different ways.

Ms. Arreola and I called the Sentencing Commission and walked through how loss would be calculated in the second case and we made an offer of concurrent -- making a recommendation of concurrent sentencing to the Defendant's advantage including the fact -- and laid out what would happen if it was stacked sentencing. I mean, there was no factor we did not consider, and then made an offer subject to negotiation.

THE COURT: Subject to my ruling.

MS. KANOF: Of course. Absolutely subject to the Court accepting it, but at least that we could negotiate.

Mr. Perez just made a comment that he doesn't know anything about the first case. I think he meant he didn't know anything about the second case because he was the appellate counsel on the first case, so I think he's very familiar with it based on what I heard in the appellate arguments.

I don't know that he needs to know about the facts of the second case because Mr. Hanshew and Ms. Franco are intimately familiar. We've discussed the evidence with them. We know they worked very hard on it. We know they're very familiar with the evidence in the second case. Mr. Perez being very familiar with the evidence on the first case, I don't know why more time would be necessary to confer with each other knowing the relative strengths and weaknesses of both cases. I don't see why it would take more time because I don't know that

Mr. Perez would have to know about the second case in order to advise his client about whether or not it was a good offer on the first case.

That being said, I'm just trying to make a record,
Your Honor, for purposes of some kind of a 2255 or something like that, because I think the Government's offer appropriately would be bifurcated. It's not unusual for an individual to have different attorneys on different cases and for those attorneys not to know the other cases in order to make decisions individually on the sentencing and then discuss it with the relative counsel for defendant on different cases. I don't think they need three months to do that, and I just need to put on the record that the Government's opinion is that there could be negotiations between now and the 25th of June when the sentencing is set that could resolve the entire case.

The Government has already told Mr. Hanshew, we've had many conversations with him regarding this, that we are open to negotiating the offer, and we've talked to the hierarchy of the U.S. Attorney's Office who have given us some leeway if Mr. Delgado is not willing to accept the offer that we made and then provide it to the Court to see if the Court would be -- if it's an 11(c)(1)(C) which, at this time, we haven't discussed that issue, but you know I definitely think that we could resolve both cases by the 25th of June.

MR. HANSHEW: Your Honor, if I may for purposes of making a record here. There's a — the elephant in the room is this, and this is to make the record, as Ms. Kanof mentioned, in terms of effective assistance of counsel, vis-à-vis 2255, and I hope that Mr. Perez understands what I'm about to do is because it's my obligation to protect Mr. Delgado's rights in terms of his constitutional right to counsel, which is the following, is that Mr. Delgado was never provided with the plea offer as it relates to the 2012 case by Mr. Perez.

The first time that Mr. Perez spoke with Mr. Delgado was evidently last night before this hearing. The plea offer in and of itself expired on the 15th. It was sent out last week. So you already have as an undisputed fact that there was a plea offer sent to his counsel in the case and that plea offer was never relayed to him by his counsel in that case and it expired. There's a problem.

Secondly, when I have -- when I go meet Mr. Delgado part of the component of this offer is notice that there's, for the first time that I know of, that there's a Second Addendum that was never provided or reviewed with Mr. Delgado by his attorney in that case.

There was the sentencing hearing date set that was never provided to Mr. Delgado by his counsel. I mean, the list goes on in terms of the, you know, lack of communication and counsel between the two. And part of it, as Mr. Perez correctly stated, is that the initial component of this case that Mr. Perez was appointed to was as appellate counsel, and as the Court knows full well, there are distinctly different relationships and requirement obligations as it relates to attorney-client communications from a trial counsel to an appellate counsel. There tends to be less direct one-on-one communication with appellate clients as opposed to trial clients, and that's true in that case in that Mr. Perez only ever met Mr. Delgado once in the entirety of the appellate case. He didn't meet him to even provide a copy of the opinion that brings us back here for this resentencing or to discuss it.

And as he said, Mr. Perez himself, it would take months for any lawyer to get up to speed for a sentencing, any sentencing. We know this on a day-to-day basis, Your Honor, in the sense that the district court cases come in and there's usually a three-month time frame when a PSR is prepared. It's investigated. It's sent to the lawyers. The lawyers then, you know, review it, go through the record.

Well, you have in front of you a case that was a trial, not only was it a district court case, but it was an actual case that went to trial with a record that goes with that.

THE COURT: Of which Mr. Perez is very familiar with.

MR. HANSHEW: Well, but Mr. Perez has never once spoken with Mr. Delgado about it.

THE COURT: Well, that's between them. That's not -MR. HANSHEW: Well, but that's ineffective assistance and so for this Court to force Mr. Delgado into having a sentencing hearing next week with a counsel who, no one can dispute, there is no way factually that anyone in this courtroom, the Government or this Court or Mr. Perez, that there's a breakdown in the attorney-client relationship.

When your lawyer hasn't even provided you with a plea offer and it expired, that is de facto.

MS. KANOF: Your Honor, we'll extend the date on the plea offer. The fact that it expired shouldn't be a consideration because having learned that he did not communicate it in ample time to discuss it with his client, the Government certainly is not going to -- going to jeopardize Mr. Delgado's opportunity to get a great benefit by not extending that offer. So we'll certainly extend the date of that offer to say the date before the -- or two days before the sentencing. You know, we're certainly open to do that.

MR. PEREZ: And, Your Honor, with all due respect to Mr. Hanshew, he's made representations I guess based on I don't know what, but it's absolutely not correct that I've only met with my client once and I want to make that very clear. I have been meeting with Mr. Delgado from time to time.

When the opinion in this case came down, it was conveyed to the federal offender immediately. My understanding, and I learned very quickly, is that Mr. Hanshew had gone and discussed it with Mr. Delgado.

I was involved with other matters at that time, so I didn't immediately go talk to Mr. Delgado since I knew that he had already been discussed with respect to the opinion, he had talked about it.

We have talked about different things. As soon as this Court set this case for sentencing, I was in communication with Ms. Franco with respect to what this Court had done and we had discussed amongst us that they had an offer and that they were negotiating it.

It's news to me that they didn't discuss the entire offer. It sounds to me like they only discussed part of the offer, and therein lies part of the problem in this case. If — if they're only discussing the offer that pertains to their case and not the offer that pertains to the other case when it's a global offer, and —

THE COURT: Well, I'll tell you one thing, Mr. Perez.

I'm not going to agree to any offer that doesn't comply with the guidelines in this particular case.

First of all, he's been found guilty. All we got to do is apply to guidelines, determine the sentence. And I'm not going — there will be no negotiations having to do with this particular case that I am going to accept. I'm going to apply the guidelines as I find them, and if he wants to appeal it again, he can appeal it again. You can take up the appeal again. Okay.

                             I'd object then to -- the Court's 3
              MR. HANSHEW:
 4
      predetermined the case and ask the Court to recuse itself.
 5
               THE COURT: I'm sorry?
 6
              MR. HANSHEW: For the Court to say that it's already 7 determined -- 8
              THE COURT: No.
 9
              MR. HANSHEW: -- without having a sentencing hearing-- 10
               THE COURT: No. I'm asking you to file objections,
     Mr. Perez, if you have any objections. I'll consider whatever objections you have, but I want them to Mr. Luevano by Monday.
11 12
13
              And, Mr. Luevano, I want you to respond by Wednesday.
14
              PROBATION OFFICER: I will, Your Honor.
15
               THE COURT: Because I want everybody to have at least 16
      one day ahead of time.
17
              MR. PEREZ: And I've been in trial all week, 18
      Your Honor. I just got out and I start another trial in a 19
      aggravated sexual assault of a child on Monday.
                           I'm sorry?
20
               THE COURT:
21
              MR. PEREZ: I have been in trial all week. I just got out of trial and I'm heading to another trial next week in an 22
23
      aggravated sexual assault of a child case.
24
                          Well, you better get off on Thursday
               THE COURT:
25
      because you're going to be here on Thursday.

1 MR. PEREZ: And I'm just making part of the record, 2 Your Honor, that I am swamped --3 THE COURT: I have not seen any objections. I have 4 not seen a motion for continuance. 5 MR. PEREZ: Well, there will be a motion that's going 6 to be forthcoming today and I'm going to set forth the reasons, 7 Your Honor. THE COURT: Set them out, but I'm not going to 8 9 continue it. Thursday is going to be -- I'm going to issue a 10 sentence in this case. Prepare for that. MR. HANSHEW: Your Honor, I just ask the Court to make 11 12 a -- I'm asking the Court to recuse itself based on the 13 comments here today to make a ruling on it. 14 THE COURT: Based on what? 15 MR. HANSHEW: The Court has just indicated that it's 16 predetermined any plea that it would accept that has to be 17 based on the guidelines. The Court has explained that it's 18 going to follow the guideline at the sentencing. In other 19 words --20 THE COURT: I haven't said anything about the second 21 I don't even know what the guidelines are on the second case. 22 case. MR. HANSHEW: But I'm talking about the first case. 23 24 THE COURT: Oh, yeah. I've got the guidelines right 25 here.

MS. KANOF: If I may, Your Honor. I disagree with Mr. Hanshew. The Court making a statement that it will follow the guidelines absolutely positively is not a basis for recusal. It's basically saying the Court will follow the law. MR. HANSHEW: That's not the law. We all know that every single day 3553, Booker and all its progeny is the law. THE COURT: Counsel --MR. HANSHEW: And the law says --THE COURT: That's enough. That's enough. If you have objections, Mr. Perez, file them by Monday. MR. PEREZ: That'll be fine. THE COURT: I'll consider whatever objections you may I'm just surprised that there have not been any objections. This thing has been set for, what, a couple of weeks? MR. PEREZ: That's my point, Your Honor. A couple of weeks. Sentencing on a case like this involves more than a couple of weeks. A cold appellate record is one thing. Sentencing involves 3553 factors which include the family, which include evaluations of this gentleman. I know a psychic [sic] report had been filed previously. It may not go as to competency to proceed with this matter, but it absolutely may have matters to do with mitigation. And if I'm going to be proper counsel to do a sentencing, I probably have to request another psych evaluation. I need to know this gentleman as a person, not just as a cold appellate record.

And, yes, I knew the appellate record, but I did not know him as a person to be able to present adequate 3553 factors for this Court to consider in sentencing.

MS. FRANCO: Your Honor, if I may, the Court's statement that you're going to find — do a sentence on this first case based on the guidelines, and as Ms. Kanof said, the guidelines is just one portion that the Court's supposed to be looking at. I mean, there are the 3553(a) factors, and so I think that based upon that, that's what rises [sic] a concern as to whether or not this Court should recuse itself if it's already made up its mind before objections have been filed and you're indicating that you're not going to consider any 3553(a) factors. And Mr. Perez is telling you he can't be ready by Thursday for — to give you any 3553(a) factors, and so, if the Court — we're asking for a ruling on Mr. Hanshew's request that it recuse itself on the first and subsequent case.

THE COURT: You're asking for a ruling on what?

MS. FRANCO: On our request that you recuse yourself.

THE COURT: Oh, I'm not going to recuse myself.

MS. FRANCO: Okay.

MS. KANOF: Your Honor, I would like to add for the record that the Government is ready to file a Sentencing

Memorandum in which the Government asks for the -- we can't ask for an upward variance because the guidelines reach 240 months, but we ask for the top based on the 3553 factors. So if -- the Judge is basically -- would be telling the Government that they wouldn't be granting their request either, and I don't think the Court is doing either of those things. He hasn't said he wouldn't consider 3553. He -- and as we know, and within guideline sentences presume to be lawful and I think this is really an uncomfortable attempt to inappropriately ask the Judge to step off the case when he's been very fair and very honest with the Defendant.

MR. HANSHEW: We respectfully disagree with that. And also, Your Honor, we'd ask the Court to consider make a ruling on Mr. Delgado's motion to substitute counsel in the 2012 case, and he has, as I've already stated, the attorney-client relationship has been destroyed between him and Mr. Perez as a result of the facts that we've discussed.

THE COURT: You're asking for -- let me get that again. To substitute counsel on the other case?

MR. HANSHEW: On the 2012 case.

THE COURT: You're not involved in that case.

MR. HANSHEW: Well, I'm here and somebody has to protect his rights, and I would ask him to be able to make that motion because what's happened to him in just the last two weeks, Your Honor, has made it clear that he has a right to ask for substitute counsel based on the occurrences.

THE COURT: Well, that's between them. I have no
 1
 2
     motion before me. I'm not going to make any ruling on that.
 3
              MR. HANSHEW: I'm -- I'm making a motion.
               THE COURT: No. You're not involved in that case -- 4
 5
              MR. PEREZ: A motion will be forthcoming in writing, 6
      Your Honor. I discussed it with Mr. Delgado based on my prior 7 discussions with Ms. Franco and what I had discussed with him previously, he thought that he should have one lawyer to handle
8 9
     both, and he was comfortable with the federal defender 10 proceeding with that, so I will be filing a motion with respect 11
      to that.
12
               THE COURT: File your motion. File your motion. File 13 all your motions. But I want the objections by Monday to 14
     Mr. Luevano --
15
              MR. PEREZ:
                          Absolutely, Your Honor.
16
              THE COURT: -- based on the Addendum.
17
              MR. PEREZ:
                           They will be filed, Your Honor.
18
               THE COURT:
                          The Government and Mr. Luevano respond by
